

to be considered. These would need to be commensurate with the type and level of threat identified from intelligence available at the time.

Guarding, Access & Key Control

Irrelevant & Sensitive

Public Access.

During events all additional exits and entrances are stewarded. There is a search policy in place and all bags are subject to search. Such a searching policy and its implementation presents an effective visual deterrent to a potential attacker

There is a range of search options available and these could involve pat downs, search lanes and metal detectors. The profile of the event would determine which of the search options were employed.

Vehicle Access.

Irrelevant & Sensitive